Sainte-Foy Tarentaise, a little gem in the mountain

Sainte-Foy is a very attractive resort which comprises a group of typical chalets and small timber, stone and lauze (stone slab) -roofed buildings. You can easily get to the listed hamlet of Le Monal on foot via a path through the forest.

This is made up of chalets and occupied by mountain dwellers, and has retained its authentic features dating back to the 18th and 19th centuries. This resort has all sorts of activities to choose from, including hiking right next to the Parc National de la Vanoise and the Italian border, whitewater sports in the Bassin de l'Isère and other family-friendly activities such as adventure tree-climbing.
